The future begins here!

PSG - Charity with a Human Face

Over nine decades ago four PSG brothers in the true spirit of the values held by their father Govindaswamy Naidu adopted charity as their fifth brother and thus started a radically different approach to charity with no parallel anywhere in the world. As such, the PSG institutions are unique where excellence, equality and ethics are considered to be the effective tools to train future generations who will contribute to the growth of nation.

The Trust started in 1926 has worked towards building a classless society based on ideals of Gandhism and in the process educated over 300,000 students mostly from economically weaker sections of the society. The Trust today has 31 institutions in which more than 30,000 students are admitted annual from kindergarten to doctoral education teaching all the possible subjects of academic pursuit in humanities and technical education.

A galaxy of eminent leaders who led the Indian nationalist movement including the Mahatma Gandhi, Jawaharlal Nehru, Rajendra Prasad, Dr. Annie Besant, Rajaji, Kamaraj, Sir C.V. Raman, Indira Gandhi among others is an icon of high quality education in the country with an alumni population spread all over the world. As India moves firmly into the global stage with the world's largest youth population within its confines, PSG's ideal of creating high capacity matched with stellar quality would find greater resonance with all those who serve for the common good of the society.

Our Philosophy of Education

Successful Education

PSG Public Schools classrooms are successful. Students are spontaneous, enthusiastic about school and fun to be around. Their relationships with their teachers show the same joy, naturalness and enthusiasm. The children are open and respectful, accepting, drawing teachers into their games, speaking and laughing with them, sharing their own problems and difficulties, free to express any feelings or ideas. The teachers respond to the children's interests in presenting the curriculum and the children experience learning as the result of their own choices, as a natural adjunct to their own activities.

Our school teaching approach is the source of this success. Our school reflects a commitment to educating children in ways that meet their basic needs. It is teacher-child centred, focused on building the trusting relationship that fosters meaningful education.
